A TEACHER TEACHES FROM THE HEART NOT FROM THE BOOK

by:
Lani G. Licup
Master Teacher I, Sta. Rosa Elementary School

As a classroom teacher, our role plays important in the life of every child. A teacher sometimes don’t need to be bookish to impart knowledge. We can inspire other children through sharing our own experiences in life in the most loving way we can so that they can learn something from us.

Our job is to mold the youth to teach them the right way to become a responsible person in the future. It is really tiresome on our part but as a public servant our passion fuels us to do things that will make a big difference in the lives of our pupils. Our harmonious relationship with them gave the children the reason to go to school every day. We cannot enrich the minds of our students by testing them on texts that purposely ignore their hearts. By doing this deed we are depriving from their rights to express their own selves. We are teaching them that words do not dazzle but confound.

Communication is essential for a teacher and use creativity to merge technology into our daily task to improve teaching and learning process. Now a days, We should use modern technology to collaborate teaching and learning process.

We as a teacher, were responsible for whatever learnings instill in their mind, but we will fail to teach them if we ignore their point of views as a pupil. It was timely for the teachers, parents especially the school heads to find ways to improve learners and to increase pupils’ learning areas.

References:

https://www.quora.com