A MODEL SCHOOL

by:
Olivia M. Buensuceso
Teacher III
Alikabok Elementary School
Orani, Bataan

In reality the school seems to be the domicile for learning. It is where achievers are sharpened and professionals are well-produced. These are the characteristics of a model school.

It is led by a good leader who has a big impact on people. This kind of leader is being loved by everybody because of intelligent decision-making and compassionate leadership.

It is comprised of quality teachers who are willing to serve unconditionally. The teachers in a model school are serving the educational clientele altruistically and are thinking of the benefits of the students.

It is composed of student-achievers who always make a difference. The students in a model school are not only achievers in academic but they also exude exceptional traits that make each one of them a stand out and brilliant.

It has safe and friendly learning facilities. The model school has complete facilities to better serve the students and the people in the school community. Aside from having organized and conducive classrooms, it has an organized library, clinic, science laboratory, computer hubs and other ancillary rooms for the students’ needs.

It has an ideal learning environment. The classrooms in a model school are set up systematically and the teachers observe good classroom management needed for effective learning. The classroom becomes an ideal place because of its structure and order.
It also caters the community. A model school extends services to the people in the community. It can participate in various civic-related activities and can be a partner in any project for a cause.

It is linked with other organizations. A model school has linkages to other organizations that promote advocacies protecting children and other people in the society.

It hones the students holistically. A model school strives to hone the cognitive, physical, affective and psychomotor aspects of the child. It is indeed working for the well-being of the student.

It religiously abides with the policy of the agency. A model school follows and adheres to the policies of the education agency where it is mandated. It also promotes its vision, mission and core values.

It sets a high standard of teaching. A model school teaches with high quality and works for excellence in outputs.

It is adaptable to change. A model school is open for changes. It copes with the needs of time and seeks for innovation.

These are the qualities that ultimately describe a model school and these are what we need to vie for quality and excellence.

References:

https://www.teachthought.com/learning-models/the-characteristics-of-a-good-school-great-school/