A child has the right to be in the school where he or she could enjoy life. This school should be friendly and sensitive to the needs of the child. The school should be loving and caring to the learners for they are in the center of education.

A child-friendly school ensures that each learner is physically safe. The school must have safe facilities and external obstructing factors may not affect the child’s good school condition.

A child-friendly school makes each learner as emotionally secured. It is very important that the child is emotionally undisturbed most especially in experiencing life inside the school premises. The child is free from any physical or verbal abuse that may affect the emotion.

A child-friendly school has effective and inclusive classroom. The school should provide a teaching environment that caters the needs of the students. The school should include all kinds of learners having equal rights and opportunities.

A child-friendly school has a good school culture. This culture is providing convenience, friendliness and harmony among the learners. It is also a school culture that invites the child to be more competitive and competent.

A child-friendly school has very supportive teachers. The teachers play a very vital role in making the life of each child better in the school. They are the ones providing a friendly and inviting setting.

A child-friendly school is gender-sensitive. All the schoolchildren are given equal opportunities and are treated fairly regardless of gender. It is giving equal chances to lead, to excel and to follow.
A child-friendly school is honing students’ skills and talents. The school is the proper venue for the child to develop and grow in terms of skills and talents. The school is the training ground for future professionals and leaders.

Having considered the above-mentioned ideas may be instrumental in attaining a child-friendly school.

References:
https://www.unicef.org/lifeskills/index_7260.html