These are several of educational philosophies that serve as the scheme on how they perform their duties. Educational philosophies dictate how a teacher treats her pupils, what she teaches and how will she teach. With the most famous philosophies of education, many believe that progressivism matters in the field of teaching. The question is what are the features of progressivism? Progressivists accept the fact life will never be permanent and change is always inevitable. For them, everything else is changing. They are identified with need-based and relevant curriculum. This is the curriculum that students need. It can properly relate to their personal situations and past experiences. Progressivist teachers teach to develop learners into becoming intelligent and enlightened citizens of a democratic society. This group of teachers teach learners so they live fully NOW not to prepare them for adult life. Now the educational system is embracing change for the betterment, it is worth it to have progressivist teacher who make a difference.
