Not as we used to have the usual learning environment of the student, the school. Are you thinking about on how your children or the student will learn in this time of pandemic? Well that’s the question of some parents and teachers when the disease arises.

If we take a look on the possibilities of learning, we can come up with the idea like the Learning from Home. This includes gaining knowledge from your relatives, advisers, friends, home books and magazines, and social media as part of learning.

Schools have been their fundamental providing social and emotional skills, instructions, health information, mental health therapy, and opportunities that can develop them.

As we face the new environment of home, we can still learn and adopt those information. As a fact, it is our benefit to study at home for the reason of maximizing the time limit of gaining knowledge for future purposes.

Modern technologies will help us by giving some convenience on searching for information or data needed in the process. Also, the guidance of our fellows can be a big help towards a full-time learning experience that the home can gave us.
