One year ago, the world was facing the challenges brought by the COVID-19 pandemic. No one is an exception regarding this matter, whether you are the richest person in this world. You will die alone; you will leave this world not seeing any member of your family and it is difficult to accept the circumstances, nothing has changed. We all need to wear a shield to this battlefield. We all need to protect ourselves and our families just to survive in this world’s situation. We all need to be strong physically, emotionally and spiritually to continue living and give the best to our family.

As a citizen, which affects not just only health conditions but the economy as well. Prices of prime commodities, transportation fares, medicines, power and other day-to-day expenses have markedly increased, resulting in even more tightening of belts just to stay afloat. As a result of this situation, those earning daily wage rate, such as myself as a Job Order, are among the hardest hit. And now, with little income, we have learned how to fit into things that were much needed during a pandemic and cope with the current situation.

Everyone is worrying about how this world will survive. How our child sees the wonderful things of this world. Whether our future children will ever see the beauty of the world. And if the vaccine is developed, it will assist a large number of families in curing the virus. This virus is the worst war we are fighting. We don't know who our enemy really is, who has the virus or not. We also don't know if science has the right basis to tell if someone is really positive for the virus or used for some other reason based on the news that politicians are doing.
This pandemic has taught us a lot, including how to appreciate the small things in life and to be grateful for every blessing that comes our way. Prayer is our most powerful weapon; it unlocks God’s heart. Not only with your mouth, but with your heart, you must speak to Jesus. Indeed, you can only talk to Him with your heart on such occasions. And He will heal as one.
