I'm still not growing yet I keep going.
I can still reminisce the day when I dragged this not-so-special teenybopper to a rapid oxidation to the point where he can't even sense the ache.

As I let harmony fill my foggy brain, the fragments of what education is, manifests me a clear sense. Its main objective is to help students capture the knowledge and skills so that they will be able to act in society. Leaners need to be provided with the necessary techniques for them to learn and become profitable member of the community.

Breathing in a world filled with strawberries is not like studying at educational institutions for many years just for you to convert yourself into a productive human being. It isn't smooth, but running away from trials and tribulations won't make things any finer.

For us to contribute in our unsteady community, we have to undergo into worthy struggles. Always be reminded that modern education is liberal, open, and exoteric. It teaches folks to think through. It is based on democracy, equality, freedom, human rights, and humanism. The content of education keeps pace with the needs of current civilization and is a mirror of its aims, values, and priorities. With regard to that, students will be more efficient and effective for different job positions if they have a great solid schooling.
Not to mention, education is crucial to each student's impulse. By working tough to sustain the best instruction possible will help train intellectuals to become next leaders and will govern to a more desirable days.

In the same way, the process of give and take systematic instruction is a necessary means of rooting out the unemployment issue. It is able to make less poverty in a number of forms. Still, we have to keep this in our mind that there is an immense need for the growth of the vocational education so that every person could pursue a fulfilling career that ensures a gratified life.

It isn't in my blood, giving up any time I get belittled or whenever I don't feel like doing things so. For the sake of better future, nothing's going to stop me. My armors in the midst of hardships need to be sharpened.

As my eyes learn to seek for more, the truth's been told about modern education. It lays emphasis on the subjects like freedom, nationality, law, human rights, democracy and scientific world view. The other parts of education are the co-curricular and extra-curricular activities which are often organized for total personality development of a student. By the same token, it fulfills needs of the industrial economy. A vast range of subjects like medicine, health, engineering, management and law have become trendy areas of professionalization and specialization today.
In addition, science and technology, grammar and literature, social philosophy, history and culture, geography and ecology, agriculture and horticulture comprise the broad range of subjects which are taught in schools, colleges and universities.

Unexpectedly, those insights of mine, gone to its deepest so I manage to see the present industrial society opening up a multiplicity of occupations and professions and each one of them is associated with scientific information and ability. It is a society of multiple division of labor.

In situations, we must adjust, keep afloat and fight.

What's my purpose could be? I don't know either but I'm pretty certain that we all have since the moment we're born on this blue green planet.

We do have purpose! We matter and we'll forever be.

As time passes, I'm learning that the only hassle I should have welcomed warmly is the greatest gift from above called “life”.

Honestly, the best way to guess your tomorrow is to construct it.
