"Individuals may form communities, but it is institutions alone that can create a nation"

-Benjamin Disraeli

Investment in capital intensive industries alone does not result in positive social and economic development of a country in the present knowledge driven world which is shrinking very fast into a global village. We have to invest in and create institutions that contribute to the multi-dimensional developmental needs of the society. Development of educational institutions is of great significance in the present day, where the economy is preparing to have a takeoff to a higher destiny. Higher education can play a vital role in this respect. So the development of quality institutions in the higher education sector in the country is a pertinent issue. A higher education is a very important sector for the growth and development of human resource which can take responsibility for social, economic and scientific development of the country. As the destiny of the country is being shaped in the classrooms, the nation building process takes its form and momentum in the institution itself.

Institution building is nation building. Hence to build a developed nation, the focus must be on the creation and development of quality institutions because only institutions can create country. As higher educational institutions are contributing directly to the economic, social and political upliftment of the society, building quality higher education institutions is fundamental to the development of the nation.

The quality of institutions matters for the growth and development of a country. The abiding purpose of any institution is to unravel remarkable possibilities of contributing through a collective process, which is the bedrock of its existence. An institution must endeavor to build the dreams of its collective future on the history of its rich past; a vision to excel, without losing out on that which is essential and definitive. One of the major strategies available to the teachers to discharge their responsibility of nation building is by facilitating building of quality institutions, as institution building is nothing but nation building.
