BE A HERO

by:

Jennifer G. Baldonado
Teacher III, Banawag Elementary School

What is a hero? Are there special persons intended to be heroes?

We have heard so much about heroes. Some idolized them and others imitate them. We do not need special power like Darna or Superman to be a hero. A child, a teen, a man, a woman or even the old ones can be a hero. A hero is born out of the blue. If you have distinctive qualities like courage, helpful, perseverance, kindness, honesty and other noble traits, you can be a hero. There are simple ways to be a hero – by helping others without expecting anything in return, fighting for what is right without hurting others, thinking about how they can take action and help others. Ordinary people who created extraordinary events can be heroes.

Solving all of the bad things in life is not being a hero. It is also about working to elevate and advance the good things in life like kindness, gratitude, helpful, charity, and love. A hero is also vigilant. They are aware of what is happening in their surroundings and always ready to help others. When somebody needs help, and you are willing to help them, you are a hero. Because you do it not for recognition, but simply because you want to do what is right. You want to help others.

Bear in mind that you have to act selflessly and put others before yourself, though your actions are not rewarded or noticed by other people, if you want to be a hero in real life. More importantly, you are looking to find ways to help people around us. Don’t limit yourself to set hours, though.
You don't have to wear a cape or to be a crime fighter to be a hero. You just have to know the good deeds of a hero. Then, when the chances arise, you'll be able to come through and save the day. You should always remember that if you have done a remarkable deed, you are a hero!

References:

https://daveursillo.com/your-hero-story/

https://smallseotools.com/plagiarism-checker/