Being a professional teacher connotes being dignified and a reliable person and one who upholds the standards or code of ethics for public employees. It also describes the qualities skills, competence, and behaviors expected of an individual belonging to a given profession. A professional teacher always strives for excellence and dedication to public interest, moral, and ethical values.

A teacher who acts as a public servant turns out as a committed worker and inspires his learners and co-workers in the workplace. He also embraces continuing professional education not only for himself but for the benefit of his clientele, the children. Since teaching is a noble profession, he always aims to prepare the youth to become good citizens, globally competitive, and nurtures them for future life. For him, teaching is not just a job, it is more than a job. It is a great mission to be fulfilled.

A professional teacher is also a model of values, persistence at work, and patience. He endures hardships, discipline, frustration, and disappointment and calmly endures all these for the sake of his learners.

A professional teacher is an asset to the entire school.
