Among other teachers variables, enthusiasm has the most powerful and positive impact on student learning. If we are going to interview some teachers and students regarding professional qualities that made them to stay long in the teaching profession, most of them will say commitment, dedication, passion or love for children. Most of us would also tell and share these qualities when we are ask why we idolized our former teachers.

In other words, these educators/mentors who are enthusiastic in teaching leave a legacy and a great impact in our lives. Teachers who inspire us and being excitement in the day to day routine inside the classroom is truly hard to forget. They use variety of techniques in teaching to catch our attention and to avoid boredom inside the class. They apply different strategies in developing their lessons and allow us to experience hands-on activities and games to improve our interactions with our classmates. They thought of different ways to make us all learning and to tap our potential. Their enthusiasm in teaching help us to make the teaching-learning condition more exciting, fun and enjoyable.

Enthusiasm in teaching is truly a must and a mother of all effort, without it teaching will just be and ordinary experience and nothing great will be achieved.

References:

Lessons from the classroom
By Hal Urban pp.9-10