They say that to become a teacher is a destiny but what is right to state is that teaching is a calling.

Let us consider the signs that may lead one to be a teacher.

Intense passion to work with the learners. Someone who wishes to be a teacher should have the desire to work with others particularly with students. A person who loves to serve the learners is best deserving of the job.

Great interest in teaching. If somebody has a huge interest in the field of education this may suggest that this person can do a good performance in teaching for interest leads one to exert the best efforts in this vocation.

Influence of love ones. The parents know best for the children. If your elders see your inclination to the teaching field then they may suggest that you may consider this kind of job. They really see the potentials in you of becoming a good teacher.

Own initiative. It is you who can decide for yourself. If you think you can, if you think you want, if you think you can do the tasks of a teacher then you have to go for it. The instinct within you and the calling may suggest you to embark in teaching.

Love and reverence for the teaching job. Teaching is said to be the noblest profession. If you really love and regard this job then you can push with it. The love and respect for teaching is instrumental in excelling in this field.
Value of Service. If you really want to serve people with altruism then teaching is meant for you. Teaching is serving without expecting a lot of remuneration. The topmost priority is to educate.

The call of teaching if up to you to consider but for sure you if you decide to be a teacher you will be able to enjoy it!
