Usually, a learning environment describes to be well-organized and quiet. It is often conceived that effective teaching reflects on the behaviour of the students, therefore noisy students are not learning and behaved students learn. Classroom management is one of the most significant factors in the teaching-learning process. It refers to the strategies and techniques that educators may employ to encourage students to be organized, engrossed to task and dynamic inside the classroom. A well-executed classroom management may result to the maximization of students’ behaviours that enable better learning and obstruct behaviours that serve as a hindrance for learning. Commonly, teachers who are effective are also good in classroom management. They are powerful enough to influence and earn the respect of the students.

Classroom management is one of the perennial problems that the teachers are experiencing in public schools, they have difficulty in disciplining the students. Inculcating discipline is a sensitive task for teachers because the students are protected by Child Policy and Protection. Ordering the students to behave is a very tiring activity that needs large scale of effort, patience and time.

However, because of the modern strategies that the teachers are utilizing nowadays, classrooms are getting noisy. Students are allowed to brainstorm and collaborate with their group mates. Activities are being presented which stimulate the students to participate in an active role. However, it is not right to perceive that noisy students are not learning.
Behavioural problems are serious and perilous, these are the results of mismanaged classroom. Students learn skills that are not suited to the time of learning and learning is limited. Teachers must not control their students, give them the freedom to spread their wings and reach what they have longed to achieve.

Teacher is regarded as a woman with strong personalities if there are no reports of cases in his/her class. It means that every problem is being solved by the teacher by him/herself only. Educational system is being impended by disorder, theft, vandalism on properties and fierceness.

Sadly, there are still teachers who employ traditional ways in teaching. Traditional teaching may result to students’ boredom and they might lose interest to learn.

Another problem of teachers is that the students who are mentally disabled, facilities and laboratory are not enough to educate these young master and princess.

Administration have to do something for this matter. Teachers and parents may help each other in inculcating God to their lives. They have to think of innovations that may change the persons’ perception and issues in studying.
