Computer and internet nowadays are becoming children’s formation. It is important to guide them not only on the usefulness but also against the danger in the use of technology. Online friends for example could be dangerous acts. Anyone can identify himself as a friend at first and later do harm to any child who can be persuaded to physically meet each other. Telling children on how to refrain from potential dangers like unknown contacts requesting for account numbers, cell phone numbers, addresses or other personal information is very important while asking internet

Computer itself can be a vast tool for unlimited source of knowledge that only child could easily learn like alphabet. Improper education would tend kids to learn the wrong ways. A guideline must be developed as integral part of education to teach children on how to deal with modern technologies effectively and righteously, since subject like computer already within the system tends to make our lives easier but require necessary precautions. Teachers and parents play an important role in today’s fast going trend in high tech communication such as internet.
