A teacher is happy to see a learner who is more attentive and focused in studies thus be a passionate learner. Developing a passionate learner is such a great accomplishment for a teacher for having a child who is studious is indeed a good picture of a learner.

The teacher has the big role and influence on the development of a passionate learner. The possibility that a learner may be transformed as passionate may happen upon following the given suggestions and recommendations:

Inspire the learner on the value of education. The teacher has to educate the child of the future benefits of the school particularly in future work or profession. The passion for learning may develop within the child once the essence of studying is instilled in the mind and heart.

Teach the child various skills. The teacher has to impart the necessary skills that the student ought to know. The teacher may serve as the trainer and mentor of the child in order fully grasp the abilities, competence and skills that may be valuable in the future.

Let the child embrace education. The teacher has to develop within the child the love for education. Embracing education wholeheartedly is possible through the encouragement and guidance of teachers.

Encourage the child to dream big for oneself. Having a goal for oneself is very important. This dream could be an inspiration and can push the child to do the best in achieving a dream in life.

The realization of a passionate learner lies on the hands of teachers and this could be made possible. The teachers have the power to lead the learner to better attitude or outlook towards studies or education.
