DISCIPLINE FROM THE HEART

by:
Jelly P. Reyes
Teacher III, Orani South Elementary School

Discipline that comes from the heart makes one obey without hesitation. In the school, a teacher who disciplines the students with kindness and benevolence would surely gain respect and obedience from them.

How to do this heartfelt endeavor is to follow the subsequent ideas given below:

Set class rules which are humane. Caring rules will make the students feel that they have to follow not because they are obliged to but because these rules are made for their benefits and welfare.

Treat them fairly. Students would follow religiously and would have discipline if they see that the teacher treats and regards everyone equally and justly. They appreciate teachers who give them more importance and attention.

Make them realize the consequences of their actions. Once the teacher clearly explained the effects of their actions, for sure they will see the real picture of the possible effects of these to them and to others as well.
Show a good example. Students love to see that their teachers are also following the rules and regulations of the class and of the school. They really look up to the person who lives by example.

Emit kindness. The value of kindness softens a heart. Any student may be motivated by a kind teacher. This kind of attribute is attractive to the eyes and pleasing to the heart.

Empower their abilities. The learners that we have today are big potentials. They only need to be encouraged to shine and achieve greater heights. Empower them and by means of this they would realize that they have to be more responsible.

Appreciate their talents and contributions in the class. Little things are meaningful. Teachers should appreciate the little things and performances of these young people in your school.

Disciplining the students is not hard if proper actions are to be done with a heart for emotion touches another and event rapport with students may be established.

References:

https://teach4theheart.com/10-ways-to-prevent-discipline-problems/