Development starts at early age. From zero-month-old, changes are taking its part in every individual. As time passed by, from the physical appearance to the emotional and intellectual quotients changes arise. At an early age, we supply all the necessary things a child must have, from clothing to nutrition. And we do not forget to let their minds become pampered too.

We give them audio-visual materials for enjoyment and learning purposes. We also keep on talking with them from time to time. Little by little we give them higher level of knowledge to be indulged by their young minds.

And as per observation, giving them these kinds of thing motivates them for more learnings. They tend to upgrade their knowledge unknowingly. They show much curiosity and interests in several things around them. They involve themselves into much tricky activities. We need to support them and guide them as well. Not all things are applicable for every individual not healthy for them physically. There are such limitations to consider as well. So as to mention, their likes, interests, and their health conditions. And more over, we adults must not pass our frustrations to them. We must let them grow on their own path of their own chosen careers.
