EDUCATION: A THREAD

by:

MAIZZA R. VALERIO
Teacher I, Bonifacio Camacho National High School

“Intellectual growth should commence at birth and cease only at death,” quoted by Albert Einstein.

The word ‘education’ has been part from birth up until to where a person is right now. It is not just about learning things and be an educated one, but it is about putting and applying it in our lives. It is all about development and reinventing ourselves for the world to see that education is a continuous process.

Some may say that once you stopped attending school means you also stopped learning too but it is not. Education is a thread for it is a continuing element. It is a line or train of thoughts and knowledge that connects us to reality of life and nothing can separate nor remove it from us.

As the quote mentioned means growing intellectually can be attained by unending education itself right from the start until one reaches his end. With the reason that, it is a thread of growth and development from birth to death.

References:

https://research.acer.edu.au/cgi/viewcontent.cgi?article=1014&context=indigenous_education