Every child has the opportunity to enter a school. The worth of education and its importance can be understood from the fact that as shortly as we are born, our parents has started refining us about an vital thing in life. As part of development, as a toddler, he begins learning new words and expand a vocabulary based on what he adopts from his parents and what his parents teach him. Starting with the basic information of who is his brother, sister father, mother, etc. and how to properly behave with anyone giving them due respect. Parents also educate and instruct him with precious knowledge about morals, ethics and right from the time of his childhood so that these qualities will reside with him for his whole life in the form of conditionings.

Herewith starts his everything, from writing, reading, coloring, playing and even socializing. Each of them is given a chance to introduce themselves to everyone and later to develop their talents and skills. We Filipinos have strong consideration with education. It is education that makes up the socio-economic and cultural life of the Philippines. The offering of different specialized programs is one of the replies of the bureaucracy to deal with the needs of the learners in the state. The offering of different curricular programs is fastened to the principle that every learner is unique and has special learning needs.

It is in school where we feed our hunger, our hunger in educating ourselves out of curiosity, to see what the world offers us outside our comfort zones. We give our learners a spoonful of knowledge every day, a good serving of values they have to live day by day, a plateful of valuable experiences that let them grow and nurture. It is in education we see hope for every youngster. It has been our practice since then on, that we enter schooling at a very young age. It is which we discover and hone ourselves to whenever talents we have, encourage ourselves to socialize among our classmates and develop camaraderie and care to others.

Education has set its trend as a ground for choosing our goals and our life in the future. It feeds our desire to learn things around us, to know every little thing from the tiniest object up to the massive universe. Education opens our world beyond what we imagined. We hold our pens to write, investigate and resolve issues around us, in our society, in our lives. It is in education that we enter in a system that feeds what’s lacking in us. Develop our intra and inter personal relationships. Makes us think of what is our purpose in the humanity.

The primary goal of education is the finest improvement of learners who are skilled, liberated and persistent person, able to direct his/ her personal life and attain his/ her maximum potential as an individual and as a member of the humanity. With the fast changing trends in the field, we widen the array of opportunities to let our learners cope with new developments and so our teachers and administrators, we have to be calibrated with new facts and information that we can utilize to advance the erudition of every student. Furthermore, include the advancing technology as part of instructional methodology and techniques in teaching.

Education enables every individual to analyze situations for better decision making. It also direct human to brawl the failure and get achievement in life. It teaches us to be a better character and honest citizen that battle corruption, environmental dilemma and joblessness.

As, teachers, it is imperative that we feed our children with spoonful of knowledge every day, a good serving of values they have to live day by day, a plateful of valuable experiences that let them grow and nurture.
