To have a good education is to help us to survive in a very competitive world where the ignorants are either pushed into the sidelines or goobled up by the powerful. Education opens path to good life. Though it is not always true that all learning comes from formal schooling, it is still a surer way of making employers know the skills and knowledge of a person. In today’s competitive society, one needs all the advantages of having good education so as to survive and eventually succeed in life.

I always remember what my grandma had told me about success. She said that the true meaning of success is to be able to spend life in your own way and in order to succeed in your own little way you must be equipped with good education in order to have a better fighting chance in the game of life.

It could also be emphasized that although formal education is necessary, there are other aspects of learning which must be taken into consideration. In other words, learning is not just mastering information or a body of knowledge. Students should also plant seeds of honesty, integrity, self-discipline, perseverance, respect of others, and a sense of responsibility to be able to face challenges more confidently and effectively. This, in turn, will help set and achieve their goals. Do not be satisfied on what you are today, rather try to be a better person by finding and opening the better passport of success. God has planted us good seeds in our heart. In everything we do, there is always something to follow. Even though we are being trained to be responsible, skilled and independent, it doesn’t mean that we can do everything we can without restrictions. We should know how to follow certain steps with caution, and if this happens, it would be more certain that not only doors will open but also the gates of success.
