Empowerment is taking charge of your destiny by making rightful decisions to choose the path to your dreams. Empowering oneself involves positive choices, taking the right step to advance confidently in your ability to make and execute decisions. When you are empowered, it gives you clearer vision to understand your strengths and weaknesses and continuously motivated to learn and achieve, which allows you to take the wheel of your life and live a full and satisfying one. Being empowered means you develop clearer ideas which path in the world of education you will choose. Will it be administration or teaching?

To make oneself empowered, you must be aware of yourself, as a teacher you will enable yourself to assess your strengths and weaknesses. You have to find parts which you need to improve and need to maximize so that you can live the most fulfilling life possible in this world of teaching where you chose at the beginning of your life assessment. Self-awareness does not mean limiting yourself to your abilities and skills but it includes also the assessing of important things that you want to accomplish.

To maximize your chances of being successful as a teacher, you have to focus your time, energy, and resources towards things which are most important to you. This includes prioritizing things in your own list which help you lead to maximum success. In this process as you empowered yourself, you will start developing self-confidence. You will start accomplishing your goals because you believed in yourself that you are capable of accomplishing them.
A truly empowered teacher can genuinely give praise to her co-workers who share the same skills and energy and celebrate with their successful accomplishments. Without regrets and insecurities, an empowered teacher is free to help others and encourage them to do better. This means that you can walk confidently to your chosen path of destiny.

Remember to list all of the things that you're good at and those things which you excel and do better. Capitalizing on your identified strengths while dealing with your limitations will give you better boost and confidence.
