ENGLISH AS LANGUAGE OF ALL

by:
Ronald S. Mingi

Language is our prime source in communicating with others. Through this, we are able to understand each other’s thoughts, ideas and eventually share learnings and experiences. In order to learn, one must be able to use language. This plays an important role in developing one's mind and in shaping the learners' hearts.

21st century learners are now far different from the previous ones. They all have their means on how to learn by themselves. They enjoy the luxury of a modernized teaching-learning process where computers, as part of their learning, are navigated at their convenience to answer all their what's, why's and how's. Looking at one phase of its advantages, these learning materials are of help in understanding unbearable terminologies of some reading materials which are written in foreign languages specifically English.

Indeed, we are exposed in a world incorporated with English words and whereby consider vital in the process of communication. But people dreaded speaking nor making speeches using the second language in his colleagues or even to a large audiences. They are afraid they might commit lapses and everyone would make fun of it which may result in a declination of using the language in the future.

English, as a speaking language of most people across the world, has challenged each young learners in pursuit to their educational achievements and accomplishments. Either learners want or not to learn English, teachers will surely mind to use it as medium of instructions for some major subjects for it briefly explains the thought and idea that a student must convey. Struggle is real for students who aren’t comfortable expressing themselves in a foreign language. They tend to stutter and stop in their thoughts because they lack vocabularies. We have studied English since elementary thus disputed English profoundly as we go and embrace it in fulfilling our duties as learners.

Learning the English language is a process. It requires patience and perseverance as we dwell on it. We cannot achieve nor attain our goals if we are afraid to retry what we just did. Immersing ourselves in learning it will amplify our knowledge upon dealing with others and will give ecstatic feeling when we make discoveries.

References:

https://www.britannica.com/topic/English-language
https://www.pressreader.com/https://opinion.inquirer.net/86602/english-proficiency-as-a-competitive-edge