Reading is the most essential tool with regards to teaching processes second to writing and speaking. Reading with comprehension as well as retention is a must for every child or individual, it is his right and privilege to learn and gain more about reading. For the child to cope up with the lesson that the teacher will impart to him as a learner, the first thing to do is to lead or guide the children in reading, more so with the correct pronunciation, syllabication, intonation, stress, and spelling. A good reader might easily understand what you are talking about with the subject matter if he/she is well versed with the words, sentence, and topics you are pertaining to. A learner might have more interest in reading books, magazines, leaflets, brochures, bulletins, and other types of reading materials that might encounter by the children/learners.

Some teachers tend to give advice to their pupils/learners to read what is being posted in the streets, malls, stores, billboards, advertisements, signages and in other establishments and see to it that you know the meaning of the word or words you encounter in the said posting. If in case that you do not know its meaning please find time to look up the meaning in the dictionary so that in the second time around you encounter those words you can proudly and confidently reach such kind of word/words.

By reading with comprehension, you can have self-confidence and self-esteem. You can easily communicate with other people not only with your peers but also with your teachers, school staff, and other people in your community and society.

Reading then can bring happiness and interests by reading different kinds and types of reading materials such as short stories, novels, tales, myths, bulletins, programs, theaters, and other reading information which might cope up the interest of the readers, see to it that once you engage in reading you learn something and gain something.

Make reading a habit. Please give yourself a time to read at least an hour or two each day at your convenient time and place, be sure that your mind and body is in good condition so that an idea you read can come into your mind, evade those things which may affect your reading time such as the big volume of sounds, humidity, more people around, unnecessary place. Just settle all these before start reading, other learners or students tend to read, memorizing and reviewing during dawn because for them it is the best time because no one is awake, there’s no unfamiliar sounds, the weather is cold, and so all information and ideas may come into the brain easily.

Make reading a fruitful one. What you read is what you get. By reading you can broaden your vocabulary, knowledge, and skills. To be able to be a fruitful reader you have to use this in everyday life, in your studies, in sharing what you read and know to others, you may lead others from the things you read. You may also give your opinion if possible. Remember stuck knowledge is nothing for reading is everything.
