GENDER AND DEVELOPMENT IN THE SCHOOL

by:
Anna Liza R. Libao
Master Teacher I, Orani South Elementary School

Gender equality is also observed in school through Gender and Development advocacy also known as GAD. The integration of GAD in the school system is a requirement in order to serve all the individuals comprising the school like the teachers, students and other personnel.

Gender and Development (GAD) renders equal treatment. The school teaches to respect all regardless of gender or gender preference. No one should be discriminated. Because of GAD advocacy everyone feels the fairness and equality.

Gender and Development (GAD) provides equal opportunities. The school considers the fact that all have the opportunities to grow and to perform various tasks without discrimination. Everyone is entitled to study, to work and do other productive undertakings.

Gender and Development (GAD) resolves gender issues. Through the advocacy that GAD upholds several gender issues are resolved as in terms of handling position, profession or responsibility.

Gender and Development (GAD) asserts the rights of each gender. This entails the right of every individual to education, freedom of expression, respect, and the like regardless of gender or gender preference.
Gender and Development (GAD) prevents conflict. Through the approaches that GAD employs in resolving gender issues eventually conflict is finally resolved. Once there is clarification on topic regarding gender, no issue may arise.

The school must continue in the dissemination and implementation of Gender and Development (GAD) in order to fight disrespect and discrimination. It lies on the hands of teachers and learners that gender equality should be uplifted, whether in the school setting or in the entire society.

References: