Bullying occurs anytime in our classroom. Most of the time student to student bullying destruct the learning process.

School bullying is a type of bullying that occurs in any educational setting. Chances are one of your students is being bullied.

As a teacher, we should accept the reality that in every group of learners there are bullies because of their individual differences.

To stop bullying we should give necessary intervention. Bullying doesn’t have to be a problem. This is where you can help. By making a commitment to prevention and intervention, you will be helping to build a positive environment where everyone feels safe, accepted, and valued. We can also talk to the parent about the situation. Increase awareness through PTA/PTO meetings, conferences, newsletters and social media. Encourage parents to support school rules and bullying intervention strategies. If a parent reports a bullying incident, be sure to investigate it right away.

We must set our own policy or the steps to take when bullying occurs. After all, in the classroom we are the last line of defense.

You have the power to put a stop to it. You’re the only one with the power to put a stop to it.
