HAPPINESS AND SATISFACTION

by:
Grace V. Magaogao

In life and in career, success comes to those who strike best with their strengths and are able to shield their weaknesses. No one is truly perfect but sometimes our imperfections serve as a purpose, they create a positive tension so that we strive hard to overcome them.

If we strive to grow, let it be physically, mentally, socially and spiritually. Stop degrading yourself and start believing in what you can do. Be confident enough to conquer your fears. Other people need us; they could be our parents, brothers and sisters, our friends, co teachers and even our enemies. We need to do great deeds for them because serving and loving them is one of the best ways of showing that we really serve and love God. He wants us to use our own talents and abilities. Consequently, we are accountable and responsible for sharing these blessings to others. In doing this, we are serving our peers absolutely.

Recognize and keep developing your strengths and try to view your mistakes and learning experiences. Use your strength to help others learn how to deal with the different demands that are asked of you. Always establish a positive attitude to empower your ideas. You cannot wait for things to happen. It is you who has to make them happen.
People who are happy in their jobs generally radiate a warm personality and are easy to get along with. They don’t have the best of everything; they just make the best of everything. Therefore, the ultimate end of our work is a sense of happiness and satisfaction.

References:

(https://metaporista.com/2011/01/19/kalidad-ng-serbisyo/)