HOW TO DEVELOP POSITIVE BEHAVIORS IN THE CLASS

by:

Olivia M. Buensuceso
Teacher III
Alikabok Elementary School
Orani, Bataan

Developing positive behaviors among the learners is such a challenging task and once it is hurdled the benefits will not be only for the class but for the personality of each individual learner. Pleasing behavior on the part of the child may manifest his or her character and actuations in the school.

A teacher may find himself or herself in the process of developing positive behaviors among the pupils. This is essential for these positive behaviors contribute in the attainment of quality learning. Furthermore, these positive behaviors are not only useful today but also in the future as well.

Teachers are expected to manage the behaviors of the pupils. There are times that pupils have unruly or disruptive actuations in the classroom but at tactful teacher deal with them patiently and compassionately. Teachers serve as the discipline officer and guidance counselor in the classroom. Treat the pupils well with respect and positivity.

The virtue of respect should be infused to the pupils. If they know how to respect, then their behaviors would be positive. They would pay respect to the older ones and may treat their peers with respect, too. Consequently, misbehaviors would be eradicated.

The experienced teachers may share tips on positive management. They say that in order for the pupils to behave positively and to engage actively in the class, a set of rules should be agreed upon. With this positive actions are attained with the combination of good academic performance. Therefore, positive climate yields positive behaviors among the pupils.
The positive tone of the teacher precisely develops positive behaviors. Address your pupils with a smile and kind words. The sympathetic expressions coming from the teacher touch the heart and stimulate the mind of the pupils. These kids like and love to hear angelic utterances of their teachers and the words make them think and behave positively.

Positive discipline shapes a positive behavior. If positive discipline is employed in the classroom then appropriate behaviors are manifested by the pupils as they interact daily in the school. The power of positivity is shown in them.

There are times that we need to reinforce the behaviors of the pupils under our supervision. Have positive corrective measures in any misbehavior problems. Get their trust, make them feel that they are safe and protect their emotions. Then, eventually positive behaviors from them may be realized.

Building the dignity of the pupils though you are disciplining them is possible. Having emphasis on the human rights and harmony with others not only in the school but also in the society is a motivating point for them to be positive in the way they behave.

Building positive behaviors among the pupils in your classroom is challenging but is also very satisfying. You do not only change the way they behave but also the way they think. Keep it up!

References:

https://www.teachhub.com/how-improve-behavior-management

https://www.edutopia.org/classroom-management-relationships-strategies-tips