Having a vision for his learners, class as well as for the school should a teacher start on. It will serve as his direction and guide in attaining his goals. One of the important tasks of an educator is to lead his students from where they are presently are to somewhere they have never been before. He must inspire and challenge them to reach their ambitions or dreams. The task of the teacher is to arouse the interest of his students and to work hard for a general purpose.

The statement which encompasses the general ideals of a person or an organization towards a future scenario is called the vision. It is a statement which gives a broad and a wide picture of that person and organization that he is trying to achieve. In addition to this, it covers all the plans and explanation of what a person and an institution want to attain. The statement needs to offer a goal of the preferred future. All educators must keep in mind that his vision statement is idealistic yet realistic.

A teacher who is visionary is likely to have a class or students who are responsible and independent. They will then see every assignment given to them as an opportunity to grow and improve themselves. They will do their very bests to reach their dreams because they are guided by the vison shared to them. That’s why the vision set by the teacher must be one that is regarded as a model towards excellence but it must be expressed in a way that it reflects values and good manners. It must also be attainable.

A teacher who is visionary will bring dramatic change/impact not only to the school where he is assigned but most especially to the lives of his learners.
