HOW TO MANAGE YOUR STUDENTS

by:
Oliver R. Magnampo

School is a place where students learn and enjoy. Every new school year there are some changes like the course material is changed, the teachers are changes and the grades of the students also change.

The teacher should comprehend the abilities of every student and keep record of it. Moreover, there should keep his/her lesson plan and grading system fully organized. He/she should identify the condition of the class that should be improved and work on it.

The kindergarten classroom supplies would be incomplete if there are no name tags of the students at the very first day. These tags will be very useful for the students to start reading and understanding their name letters at least and how to pronounce these letters.

These tags will surely help the teacher to identify and track any student by his/her name. The plates fixed to the desk of each student containing his/her name will be a better idea.

Secondly, every teacher has his own plan of teaching the class like arranging and keeping record of lessons to be delivered and class work. This will help him keeping up to date and organized. He should organize all this information for a better teaching.

These tools are very useful to manage and maintain an order in the class room. Wheel charts, student groupings pencils are included in these tools.

The required academic goals of the class can be achieved by proper management and utilizing these tools. These tools are very helpful for the teacher to improve the learning atmosphere of the class by proper management of class discipline.
There are different supplies needed for different classes and hence the supplies should be carefully considered. However, some supplies are necessary for almost every class to maintain discipline and control.

References: