I AM MY TEACHER, THIS IS MY STORY

by:
Mary Grace N. Bamba
Teacher III, Limay Elementary School

At the early stage of my life in my elementary years I started to dream to become a teacher someday. My admiration to the concern, love affection shown and being models of the wonderful women in my life who were my teachers in elementary inspired me a lot to be a teacher.

Poverty in life does not become an obstacle to pursue and achieve my dream, but instead it challenges me to continue my battle in striving my goal in life. Despite of all difficulties I encountered in fulfilling my dream I never surrender, never give up until I achieved my ambition and succeeded. And it is almost 9 years now when I attained the fruit of my labor, my dream which was to be a teacher. Many people would tell that a teacher is an ordinary profession, but they never realize the big role of teachers in life. I am a teacher now because of my teachers before. They touched my life and contributed a lot to my success. This is exactly what I want, to touch someone’s life, contribute something to the children and help them to dream and achieve success in their lives.

The past 9 years in my life as a teacher and until now was hard for me yet rewarding on the other part. Hard because of big responsibilities put on my shoulder as a teacher. Teaching children was not as easy as I thought before. It is not enough that you teach them rather you have to assure that they learn. It is not pure teaching; it is more on loving children. I should practice what I preach and be a role model to them. I should serve as inspiration to my children and must direct their life, mold them in good deed, help them to achieve something in their life someday and the most important I should touch their life. As of now I am still admiring and trying to be my former teachers.

I will never get tired of teaching and inspiring children despite of all my weaknesses and imperfections until they achieve success in their life, like what I have today because of my teachers. And as I continue teaching I will find myself receiving much more than I will give. I believe teaching is imparting and giving more than what you have. And being a teacher is the best even it is very difficult yet, I know it is more rewarding job. I am proud to say that “I am a teacher, I achieved my dream and this is my Life Story”.

References:

https://teach.com/what/teachers-are-role-models/
https://teach.com/what/teachers-change-lives/