I LIKE ME BETTER WHEN I’M WITH YOU

I love the background music used when Catriona Gray ramped during the Ms. Universe 2018. I even searched for the title of the song. While listening, aside from the fact that I like the beat and melody, I also like a particular verse which goes like this “I like me better when I’m with you.”

I know this piece is meant to be a love song, but as a teacher, I feel like it is more of a second mother’s feeling whenever she is with her pupils. I become a better person whenever I am with them. I feel more alive. My life has meaning for having my pupils a part of it.

How about you? Have you experienced the same thing? Can you imagine yourself to someplace apart from them? I must admit that having our pupils around is not always all about happy and fun moments, but have you tried looking back and later on finding yourself smiling at those bad days?

It was actually because of those frustrating events with our learners that we became better people. It was because of them that we try to keep on finding ways to improve ourselves. It was them who actually tested our patience and character that we learned to know ourselves more and better.

Every school year is another chance to progress and move forward. Henceforth, I just hope and pray that we can sustain our passion and spirit to work so as to hear our pupils as well that they like themselves better when they’re with us.
