Realistically, there are different kinds of school leaders in the field of education at present but one exceptional among them is a visionary school leader. A leader of a particular learning institution should have a great vision for the entire school... for the success in all aspects of education depends on the kind of goal set by the school principal.

A leader that is visionary has a huge dream for the school and its people. This dream is composed of the efficient school management and operations, systematic administration and supervision of teachers, effective teaching-learning process and harmonious relationship with the stakeholders.

A leader that is visionary is highly motivated. The passion to bring a great change for the entire school is evident. A visionary leader is strongly-driven to find ways in order to enhance the condition of the school, to raise the quality of education, to elevate the status of teachers and to enrich the students’ learning experiences.

A leader that is visionary has clear educational objectives. It is a year-round duty of the visionary leader to implement and attain educational objectives which are contributory to the efficient and effective management of the school and its people. Most importantly, the visionary leader is dearly after for the best learning of the educational clientele.

A leader that is visionary follows what he or she believes is right and effective. Since the school leader knows the strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and threats that may beset the school, it is essential to follow the notions that are right and effective. Having followed the right and effective things may lead the school to a better path.
A leader that is visionary is accepting change. The things that may come along way are unpredictable that is why the visionary school leader is flexible enough to accept changes. A visionary leader may have a vision for the school but must also anticipate and embrace the changes in the educational system.

A leader that is visionary sets specific targets to achieve better outcomes. After having set the general goal for the school, the visionary school leader must have particular objectives to be attained. These specific targets may address all the needs and concerns of the people in the school.

A leader that is visionary unites the people in school for a common goal. It is unavoidable that the teachers, personnel, students, parents and other stakeholders may have their own respective ideas, insights and intentions but a visionary school leader unites them for a common goal and that is to have a single general vision for the school’s success.

A leader that is visionary communicates with the internal and external stakeholders. A visionary school leader doesn’t only confine the dream and plans to oneself but may share and communicate them to the teachers, staff, students, parents or guardians and with all the people in the school community. It is much better if they know your brilliant vision for the school that you lead.

A leader that is visionary includes the core values in the school plans. It is one best practice if you incorporate and blend the core values in your plans. Anything that is virtuous may contribute to the accomplishment of the vision for the school.

A leader that is visionary compels the necessary campaigns and procedures in reaching the dream for the school. Advocating and following the vital means to attain the productivity in the school are very essential.
Indeed, a school leader with vision is progressive and prolific. Be one and set the elite image of a visionary school leader!
