IMPORTANCE OF NON-TEACHING PERSONNEL

by:
Rhea Katrina P. Dumalag
Applicant

Every personnel, whether teaching or nonteaching positions, has indispensable job in scholastic realm. Each one has a crucial part in advancing quality education. Though, the deliverance of education centered mainly on teaching staff, non-teaching personnel has distinct yet essential functions to execute.

As specified, non-teaching personnel is a classification characterized as anybody utilized by a scholastic system who does not function as a homeroom educator. This can encompass administrators, guidance advocates, bookkeepers, custodians, utility, etc. Although their job category is unlike to those in instruction positions, non-teaching labor force ought to likewise be viewed as one of the most prominent assets of school system. They also demand progression aid for them to flourish and have the opportunity to deliver improved assistance to the scholastic framework. The assistance that these staff provide are exceptionally basic to the conveyance of quality instruction.

Roughly, the non-teaching labor force encompasses more or less half of the scholastic system manpower. They are generically branded as “hidden half” and “support staff.” While their positions are non-instructional and behind the limelight, they extend essential relief. Moreover, academic institutions and offices depend on the expert contribution and mastery of a scope of personnel. Some function as backups to educators and some serve behind the scenes to have an assurance that there is a functional facility which is pertinent in teaching and learning process. These non-teaching staff correspond to accomplish responsibilities that necessitate them to take dealings as are rational in all the conditions to shield learners from peril.
Undeniably, non-teaching manpower is likewise an asset to scholastic field. For these reasons, it must be guaranteed that their welfare ad security especially in times of global emergency must not be bargained. As the country and school agencies are encountering a variety of conditions throughout the nation, information about school personnel become vital for scholastic leaders to pursue innovative way out to address the challenges of the new normal.

References: