Behind the success of each learner is his or her support system. This support system assists him or her in his or her quest for learning, thus, leading to development, growth and productivity. In other words, the learner’s support system has a big role and strong impact in his or her life.

Support system refers to a group of people that a person certainly trusts and relies on for guidance, help, assistance and consultation. The support system may have a great impact or influence on every learner. The support system is composed of the learner’s parents, siblings, relatives, teachers, friends and close peers.

Having the support system is advantageous on the part of the learner and may greatly affect his or her performances in the school.

Through the learner’s support system, he or she is able to think creatively. Since the support system inspires the learner, he or she expresses his or her ingenuity and efficiency particularly in their undertakings in the school.

It leads to the development of interpersonal skills. The support system boosts the confidence of the learner and because of this, his or her interpersonal ability is developed. This shows that support system assists the learner to communicate and deal with different kinds of people.

It develops leadership within the learner. Because the learner feels that he or she has a big support from the people who care for him or her, the confidence to become a leader is developed. Having the group of people who believes in your ability is indeed building your self-assurance or confidence.

Through the support system, the learner is able to handle hard or difficult situations or challenges. The learner may seek advice from the people he or she trusts. These people who are included in the support system may provide meaningful and logical advice which may support the learner in times of difficulty.

The need for learning resources would be responded by the support system. Your support system may have these learning resources which they used before. Also, the learner’s support system may find ways to provide the needs of the learner.

The learner is more motivated to study because of the support system. Having the great people behind the learner is indeed stimulating. The support system raises the drive and determination of the learner to accomplish more things and to attain success in his or her endeavors.

The learner’s active participation in different school activities is apparent due to the support system. The support system adds encouragement to the learner to actively showcase his or her abilities and talents in different school undertakings.

Having a support system is extremely advantageous and valuable to every learner for he or she may reach the peak of success through the people behind his or her back to render they unconditional guidance, care and support.
