ICT is the most revolutionize way of communication. ICT or Information and Communications Technology refers to any hardware and software that is used as tool for communication. ICT becomes the most powerful and useful communication tool. It covers different kinds of communication technology and the most widely known are the cellular phones, computers, satellite systems, radios and televisions. Using these communication devices, you can easily retrieve, manipulate, transmit or receive digital data. ICT devices are continuous evolving from time to time. And in every evolution of these communication devices it opens another opportunity in speeding up the transmission of digital data.

Internet is the most widely used information system today and almost every day, people go to World Wide Web for socializing, directions, research and entertainment. ”The World Wide Web (www) is the system that enables you to access hypertext documents and other files over the internet” and this system becomes an advantage for all students to easily gather information about their study. World Wide Web is not just for research purpose only it also caters different kinds of web site like E-commerce where you can buy and sell different products like books using the web like the ebay.com; blogs where you can find and publish different articles like wordpress.com, where you can start your own blogs and publish your own articles; social media where you can socialite and find educational resources like Facebook for instance, where you can engage yourself in learning using the educational pages made and interact with different kinds of people who have a knowledge about your topic; and tutorial sites where you can find online tutorials on your chosen field like w3schools.com, an online web tutorials that cater different web programming languages tutorial like the html, css, javascript, SQL, PHP, ASP and XML.

World Wide Web becomes useful for those individuals who want to educate themselves but have no time coming into a school because of their personal matter. They can use the Open CourseWare (OCW) and different online school so that they can easily educate themselves without going to a school from time to time. They just need to enroll the course they want and watch all the lecture videos on that course which are based on a real lesson in a classroom then after, they are going to answer all the prepared questions for every lesson they are going to finished. These online schools and tutorials become useful for many people especially for those who can’t afford the amount needed to be able to get enrolled in a school they can use the different free tutorial videos uploaded on different website like youtube.com to study the different subject or topics that they should learn in the actual classroom setting.
