“IT IS NOW OR NEVER”

by:

Daisy I. Alarcon
Teacher II – Mabatang National High School

When I was a kid, I used to wake up with toys beside me. I was just a child of course, with childlike wants and ways. However, as I enjoyed my childhood days going to maturity, my wants and ways suddenly changed into sound reasons.

Waking up is not that easy. It takes a lot of nerves to wake up again if God permits for a purpose. If I would be given the chance to wake up again and God asked me with whom I would want to wake up? Definitely my answer would be to wake up with my dearest family”, my husband and kids. Seeing them after six to eight hours of sleeping is a sigh of relief, thanking God for giving us another day to be with our family and together we will share blissful memories.

Spending and sharing thoughts and precious moments with my family, exchanging pleasantries, giggling, and hugging one another are priceless and incomparable. My caring husband and my cool kids are my treasures. They give me strength and courage to go on in life. They are the reasons for me to grapple all the hardships in life. For without them, my life would be so empty and lonely.

Closing my eyes is so hard for me to do for I am clueless what will happen the next few hours of lying in bed. Sleeping is like a game. You do not know if you are going to win it or lose it the next day. So, be generous in showing all the love and care to your family while you are here in this world for it is NOW or NEVER.
Moreover, as much as I wanted to become a good parent and be with my dearest family as soon as I wake up, it goes with my sincerest desire also to be a competent teacher every day. A good parent to her children, I believe, will be a competent teacher to her students and it is with the help of the Department of Education.

As they say, the many the better. Multiple options or alternatives give us the opportunity to choose which is best to utilize for the advancement of one endeavor. Education is a serious topic. It is not easily achieved. To achieve its purpose, different curricula or programs were offered and applied such as SEDP, RBEC, BEC, SEC 2010, and the latest, the K+12 Curriculum. It is very timely that the Department of education implements the standard curriculum for the progress of the learners and efficiency of the educators.

K+12 Curriculum is said to be effective if all of us will be receptive. To be open and quick-witted to the new ideas for the welfare of our students, surely, its purpose will be served. We should have an open mind to undertake all the possibilities that we can give and cater them to our students, the better, if not the best, the quality of curriculum they deserve.

It is like trial and error. After all, there is no harm in trying for the sake of identifying what is the best curriculum in being adept as the learners go through all the stages in exploring what they would want to be in the future.

With the change of emphasis on educational objectives, with the inclusion of more outcomes of learning, with the focus on the child as the more important factor in the educational process, the curriculum has broadened. We, teachers, together with the Department of Education, will contribute greatly to the success of our learners. Education is an opportunity we could not let go of. It must not be set aside. It must be prioritized. It develops our mind and gives a strong foundation for us to be able to find a stable future. It molds us to becoming responsible citizens. Let us continue honing their academic skills and aptitudes, and a role model for them to be smart and virtuous, for it is NOW or NEVER.

References: