Job commitment is the feeling of responsibility that a person has towards the mission and goals of an organization. When an individual has job commitment, he or she could perform tasks and responsibilities that would help any organization to attain its goals and objectives.

Generally speaking, commitment to your present job provides a good idea of one’s overall commitment to work. When an employee is committed, she/he will be giving his/her effort, time, and everything to his/her job. Some of their leisure and relaxation is less priority.

As an educator, we should give our best to perform effectively and productively. Our focus must be given to our work not just because it’s our bread and butter but because we are under our profession to serve the school, teachers, students, parents, and other stakeholders. Our main priority is to uphold the quality of education.

Being committed to work is not just doing your best as part of the institution but because it is part of your duties and obligations. You have to give all to your job with sincerity and initiative. Because successful teaching and educational management is the key to create an effective and competitive student that will inspire others to fulfill life with aspiration and ambition. Our job is not just to teach them but also to give them our heart that will make them inspire to study hard and make difference.
Aside from these, we should convert our weaknesses into strengths to provide satisfaction not only to you but also the school as a whole. Your positive perspective in life would help you build a strong personality and will also create positive characteristics that leads to positive performance and a positive feedback from others.
