LAZINESS WON’T DO ANYTHING GOOD. IT WILL JUST DELAY YOUR SUCCESS.

“Yes, I will do it later.” This line is the most favorite line of every student. Accept it or not, laziness always comes along the way. The process of education is a long run. It’s a long journey wherein every time you come home, you come home with something new in your mind, in your heart and in your actions.

It’s normal to be lazy, but it’s not normal if you don’t do anything to fight it and stop it from coming along your way. Students often say they will do it later, or they will do it tomorrow but if they can do it later or tomorrow, why not now? Why not today? Every second counts, it’s between now or never, not now or later.

I have this one friend when I was in high school but I will not mention his name due to respect and privacy, but I will use his story as an example for this article. He was the laziest among the class. We were about to enter college and all of us were busy fixing our documents and reviewing for the college admission exams, we asked him why he’s not yet starting to apply for college applications. He said he’ll do it on summer vacation, we told him to do it now so that we can apply all together. He said his parents will be the one to fix everything for him, including his college applications. During the last month of summer, his parents died in a car accident. After his parents passed away, he had no idea what to do with his life because all his life he has been depending on his parents. Because he took his opportunities for granted, his entrance for college got delayed again and again until he got left for the college graduation.

Every time you delay doing something, it will affect the outcome. What if you die later? How will you do the things you said you would do? See? Time is really important because you have no idea what will happen now or what will happen next. While you still have the time, grab the chance to do everything you could do because who knows if it will be the last time?

According to Lao Tzu, “Time is a created thing. To say 'I don't have time,' is like saying, 'I don't want to.” Well, I believe in his statement. As long as you have the will to do something, there will always be a way. But if you really don’t want to do it, there will always be an excuse.

Laziness won’t do anything good. It will just delay your success, or worse, it can stop you to reach the success you’ve been wanting for. Instead of saying you’ll do it later, better do it now.
