LET’S NOT BREAK THEM TOO FAR!

by:

Janet B. Rodrigo

Orani National High School Parang – Parang

Family is the first persons we met. We can say that it is important for a family to have a father and a mother that bond and give love to each other. Also, it is a must for a parent to make their children feel supported, loved, cared, and guided through thick and thin. This kind of scenario can be found on a complete family making them a good example to the society.

But not all have been blessed with such a complete or a beautiful family. And to whom with a broken family, all of the aspects of their life are affected. Having a broken family can have negative affect all domains of your child’s development. The most affected are those young children, older children and teenagers may experience some problems in their social, emotional and educational functioning. Specifically, when it comes to education, they were always seemed to be bothered with what is happening in their family.

According to Hargreaves (2002), good grades require positive effects of parental involvement that have to be demonstrated at both elementary and secondary levels across several studies with the largest effect often occurring at elementary level where numeracy, literacy as well as values of human development are very essential. Having a broken home affects child and the effects manifest in different ways because they can not gain enough love, care, and attention they needed. These children tend to became stubborn and not willing to listen to anyone. They tend to do whatever they wanted to because for them they are not important. Same in the school, they are not interested to learn, they will do things that is unnecessary. They seeking for too much attention in different ways, like bullying, cutting classes, peer grouping, and even involvement on illegal actions.

We teachers, stand as their second family. We should be the one helping them in time of their needs. Teach them to have courage despite of all their challenges. Let us be their bridge in coping their problems. Let us look into their lives not to meddle and judge but to learn how we can build them. We have to talk to them deeply and heartedly for us to understand and not to shout at them. We have found them if they are lost in our sight, or when they feel losing their hopes. Let us pull them upward to climb into their dreams not to push them down into their grief. Let us not break them too far, help them to find their every piece that have been lost.

References:
https://www.thenews.com.pk/magazine/you/76974-the-effect-of-a-broken-family
https://www.grin.com/document/384998