“Nothing is permanent in this world but changes”. Humans are naturally discontented on what they have so as a result they keep on craving for something new. As years go by, our society changes in many ways. These changes also exist in the field of teaching – learning process. Traditional way of teaching has a great impact to the students but then again, we are in modern era where in we used to deal with those modern technologies in teaching learning process.

Teachers also change. They need to attend seminars about new techniques and approaches that are lined with the modern generation. They also need to study on how to use technologies not only to ease their task but also to get the attention of the students. In these some reason teachers need to adapt what is in this generation for them to be more effective teacher.

Based on an article made by Montemayor (2018), she stated that even before overseas Filipino workers were called modern-day heroes, teachers nationwide were already hailed as such because of the nature of their job and the devotion it requires from them. With that being said, nobody can’t top a teachers dedication because as of today a teacher can go through all of adjustments and adaptation in this modern world, in order for us to become a better person, they deserve to be respected, treasured, and honored. Everyone can’t be a successful person without a teacher. That is why I consider a teacher as one of today’s heroes.
References: