School is one of the most challenging working place, all the staff do their task. Aside from our salary and family, teachers look for the motivation to do their tasks more efficient.

School head is one of the factors on how to motivate teachers in order for them to work effectively and productively. Their encouragement would help teachers to become optimistic concerning to their job. A good relation with colleagues would create a good and convenient workplace.

A leader who knows how to motivate colleagues would create a good relationship in response with other employees. They would have a sense of responsibility and initiative. A school administrator should see to it that he/she is the model. He/she should be reliable and has integrity. He/she must walk their talk.

When these happen, their subordinates would become more eager to work with confidence and motivated to come to school with a positive thoughts and an optimistic mind.

Because, the success or failure of a school organization is closely related to the effort and motivation of its employees. The motivation of employees is often the product of their commitment towards their job or career. As a result, school heads have an incentive to ensure that teachers and other employees are committed towards the success of the organization and producing at a high level. They should strive to provide an environment that will foster innovation and collaboration, build a great relation, and promote employees who excel.
