The classroom may be a place where students spend most of their time. So, the values learned within the classroom will always remain with learners. Though, all teachers want their students to excel in life, motivation within the classroom is one among the important ways to help achieve this goal. There could be some students within the classroom who are extremely self-motivated and don't require inspiration from somebody else. However, motivation within the classroom can certainly help these students more and also those that aren't conscious of their strengths. Now, before discussing how motivation within the classroom should happen, allow us to understand the necessity of motivation within the classroom within the next paragraph.

Need for Motivation within the Classroom

Motivation within the classroom by teachers helps students specialise in their studies better. Students understand how they ought to approach a specific subject and obtain their doubts cleared. The aim behind motivating the scholars is to form them conscious of their strengths and weaknesses. Good motivation can help the scholars fix their goals in life. There are many students, who lose interest in their studies because of lack of motivation, attention and guidance from their teachers. due to this, students find themselves being failures in their life once they get older albeit that they had all the talents, abilities and talent to succeed in the topmost position. Thus, there's an enormous need for motivation within the classroom.

How to motivate students within the classroom
Student motivation is of two types - intrinsic motivation and extrinsic motivation. Intrinsic motivation makes a student study and take interest in his job thanks to his strong will power and strength of mind. In other words, such students practice self-motivation. On the opposite hand, an extrinsically motivated student would walk hard and study an aim of winning a prize or getting praised by his parents and teachers. Though it's the responsibility of teachers to motivate students, one must learn self-motivation together grows up.

Motivation within the classroom can increase the arrogance of scholars to great extent. So, it's time that we understand the importance of motivating students and implement it practically.
