Nalang Na Jasin (I, Me, and Myself)

by:
Yvette B. Gomez
Master Teacher I, MNHS – Cabcaben

One or two.

White or black.

Left or right.

Man or woman.

Where to go. What to do.

We are focused mostly on sides which favor one from the other. We merely looked on a greater aspect.

Nowadays, gender issues are enormous. There are groups who work really hard to win this fight.

Gender as defined in the dictionary is the behavioral, cultural or psychological traits often associated with one sex.

Meanwhile, the stage you play at home, relationship, or in the community or society as a whole is known as gender role (Lewis, 2017).

Each of us is expected to act according to the role we have to play. Traditionally, those strenuous activities are associated to masculine gender while those which require less energy are for feminine gender.

However, our society changes. Changes which lead to switching of roles that men and women played in the olden times.
Norms in terms of work and preference to gender also vary.

Modern society heats up the desire to each and every individual to work equally towards excellence regardless of his/her sexuality.

An individual is expected to develop holistically thru co-education system. With this, both men and women will be able to feel their self-worth, thus, making them more confident and efficient as believed by a Greek Philosopher- Plato.

In this instance, school really plays an important role in disseminating the value of gender sensitivity through exposure to academics and co-curricular activities.

That is only stating that we must continue to believe that all are created equal whatever gender we belong. That trusting and giving opportunities are the key factors to one’s success.

Men and women.

All are god’s gift. We are on the same track doing the same thing for self-appraisal whatever gender we have.

References:
