NO TO SPOON FEEDING PROCESS

by:
Jasmine L. Nieto
Teacher-Applicant

Education is one of the most significant thing that a person or an individual must have. Because through education you can have the things that you wanted to have. You can choose the right thing or decision that you want to choose. You can share the knowledge that you have. And you can do what you can.

And as a new generation the facilitators must use new technique to teach students with the use of Tutorial, Modular and Online Class. An instructional exercise or tutorial is a small class of one or just a couple of understudies, where the mentor, an instructor, or other scholastic staff member, gives singular regard for the understudies. A particular is a course that is shorter than a full term and can begin and end on any week during a term.

While an online course is designed as a built environment for learning. It's constructed as an experience that can be followed sequentially or can be accessed throughout the designated time period. Through this systems a busy student can handle his or her time and can manage the lesson well without any worry. And lastly the teachers can also use some strategies to catch the attention of the class and to understand his or her discussion in the classroom very well. A teacher must have a sense of humor to be connected with the students.

And as a youth of today starting from now we need to practice ourselves to stand by our own feet and to learn something new. We need to bear on our mind that as soon as possible we need to stop this spoon feeding process of teaching. So what are you waiting for? Are you ready to face the world by your own?
References:

ModularCourses. https://registrar.wisc.edu/modular/
