The success of students in their scholastic pursuits lie so much in the parents involvement as they support their children in their school work.

Parents and teachers assure their children that school is a good place for them. One’s life inside the school is not something we can call the real world but it is life nevertheless that would mold an individual into someone strong and courageous enough to take on the challenge of this world.

Learning would be worthwhile for them as long as parents play their vital role as guardians reinforcing not only the completion of assignments but also fostering the understanding of lessons toward excellent academic performance.

As enumerated by Fernandez in his article “Parents Can Help Their Children Get Better Grades”, some ways on how a parent can help get better grades in school as follows:

1. Time means love.
2. A good environment sets the stage.
3. Make a room for laughter
4. Provide adequate place to study.
5. Keep him/her dangling.
6. Help the child acquire sound study.
7. Accept your child’s pace.

8. Teach the child how to find information.

9. Help the child read better.

10. Help the child believe in himself.

11. Help the child learn to listen.

12. Seek a response and enlarge a child’s horizon.

13. Show the fun to others.

14. Help the child write legibly and fast.

15. Help the child learn to take the test.

16. Give the gift of approval.

References: