Discipline plays an important role in the teaching-learning process. Pupils tend to comprehend the lesson best when they are well-disciplined as the teacher conveys the lesson. This, likewise, helps the pupils to progress themselves entirely as individuals and as future leader and citizen of our country.

New teachers tend to extract from the teaching ground because of the pupils whom they cannot control. Pupils tend not to listen to their teachers. As a result, pupils are not learning anything from their teacher.

Maintaining disciplined among pupils is not as easy duty, most especially for those teachers who are new in the teaching profession. They find struggle in commanding discipline in the classrooms. To overcome this situation, try the following suggestion.

1.) Start Right. From the very beginning, set your rules and regulations regarding pupil's discipline. Inform also their parents about the rules you gave.

2.) Be Firm. Say what you mean. And mean what you say. Whatever words that you utter, stand by them. Whatever rules you have, do not break them.
3.) Do not yell or scream in class. No matter how angry you are, you should state your words with composure. Screaming at the pupils will only lose the respect they have for you.

After considering these suggestions, something different will happen for you have done something for the development of the character of these young generations. For sure, discipline of pupils will not be a problem anymore to every teacher.
