PUPILS GOOD DISCIPLINE: A KEY TO EFFECTIVE LEARNING

by:
Annaliza A. Manalansan
Teacher III

One of the biggest challenges for all teachers is how to sustain discipline among his pupils. Every teacher encounters indiscipline pupils. It is a problem that can affect the teaching and learning situation inside the classroom. If the teacher does not know how to hold his pupils behavior, surely there will be chaos. But there are always to handle indiscipline pupils in the class. First, set expectations early. At the start of the classes, pupils must know that your expectations of them will no longer be compromised. Once they break the rules they need to be ready for the consequences. Second, observe the attention span of the pupils. A teacher can estimate the child’s attention span by observing their behavior. Give them activities that will keep them moving in class. Do not spend so much time sitting in one place. Let your pupils move around. Lastly, always think about the lesson behind pupil’s behavior. There are some factors that cause pupil’s misdemeanors. Some might not given much attention and so they think for it. Others can’t understand the lesson, so the tendency is to do something that can distract the class and eventually will influence others to do and will no longer listen to their teachers, while some have not eaten well. The fact is that all behavior has purpose. And we cannot treat any misbehavior effectively until we know the reason for it. If the teacher is aware of these, it would be easy to address the problem.

References: