REAL ESSENCE OF TEACHING

by:

Ma. Rosario R. Chingcuangco
Guidance Counselor

People may be wondering on the scenario that the number of teachers in the country is increasing. Surely, there is something in the teaching profession that catches the interest and attention of young generation. Considering teaching as education requires an individual to ponder on its real essence.

Teaching is profession and at the same time a vocation. It is a profession in the sense that it adheres to the standards and principles of education. It is a vocation for it done not just to earn for a long but to serve all kinds of learners regardless of age, sex, socio-economic background, ethnicity, religion and the like.

The teachers who are in school is expected to possess the heart of teaching which has the burning passion to educate the learners with knowledge and competencies, developing them holistically and making them smart and productive. This also means that the teaching profession is doing its shares for the betterment of people leading them to progress by filling them up with the essential skills and skills needed in real life.

Teaching also includes the instilling of the right moral values to the educational clientele. Teachers should also serve as role and exemplary model of morality not only in school but also within the community they live. The ethical standards are best taught by teachers and easily learned by the students.

The ability to relate in people are also acquired in the school. Teachers are the ones instructing the students to establish camaraderie and harmony with fellow people. The teaching profession develops men and women who know how to deal with the community, who has the ability to understand people.
Teaching is opted to educate the community regarding the love and care for others. Teachers through integrating the love and concern for others in their lesson greatly influence the minds of the young people to be altruistic and generous to others in sharing not only material things but also accepts shortcomings of others and to show their peers tolerance and compassion.

Teachers also direct attitudes and behaviors. Every time in school, the teachers are always positive and ardent in guiding the attitudes, habits and behaviors of the students. This is being done because we aim to produce people who are well-educated and well-mannered. It is great to see that teachers and the teaching profession was able to mold good or better people and even the best ones.

Indeed, teaching is engaged in developing the learners’ knowledge, skills and abilities, sharing the right moral values to children, inculcating with the students the importance of having a good relationship with others, implanting the love for the community and directing the attitudes and behaviors of learners.

References:

- Essence of true education. Retrieved from: https://theshillongtimes.com/2013/06/05/essence-of-true-education/#:~:text=Education%20is%20generally%20understood%20as,training%20sharing%20and%20communicating.&text=Informal%20education%20is%20a%20form,an%20institutionalised%20setting%20of%20education.