RELEVANCE OF TEACHER TRAINING DURING PANDEMIC

by:

Jenalyn D. Padre

Master Teacher I, Ipag Elementary School

To have a quality education, teacher training is one of the vital things for an institution. Educators aim not only to stand out in their chosen field of specialization but they also need to establish a character on how to deal with and handle tricky behavior from individuals, as well as how to manage discreet concerns that their learners might present with them. To guarantee children that they are protected, and they have a person who can assure them to freely communicate as well as to reach the ability calls for teachers to be mindful and well competent.

As a teacher, you are likely to be taking on several roles. Practitioners and skills, that are often not told in professional development systems, even need about all these roles. Having abrupt changes in the way teachers teach today they undergo different webinars or so-called online seminars. Teachers undergo different training on how to use a different platform to teach learners. Even the veteran teachers did up skills and re-skills themselves so that they can provide quality education to their learners.

Teaching professionals are prepared when they initially train to become teachers, but it sometimes tends to involve more, and guidance from knowledgeable professionals may well be needed. These professionals will train you in your area of expertise and draw on your own experiences and feelings. They will seek to assist you to overcome any problems you have and permit you to continue teaching constructively.

Teacher training should involve theoretical concepts in the classes to be taught, as well as being a good role model for learners, and they should have some experience in the classroom. Data suggest that majority of the skills that teachers will learn should be acquired in the initial five years of practice. These skills are usually learned by paying attention to senior teachers who have more experience and are comfortable suggesting a variety of approaches and suggestions on how to teach and manage classes positively. And even the pandemic can’t stop the teachers to enhance themselves to equip in teaching using modern technologies and different platforms during this new normal.

As a teacher you will need to keep up to date with new methods and teaching techniques throughout your teaching career, so teachers are kept up to date and always checked to keep a good standard of teaching. Teachers are the same with soldiers always ready for the sake of others

References:

Author’s Personal Insights