The education of the learners would be more interesting and exciting if new modality will be implemented in our educational system which is modular learning. This kind of learning avoids the face-to-face interaction to prevent close contact and to observe health protocols.

The schoolchildren will be availing the modular learning method in order to continue studying despite of the current pandemic. The opportunity to develop and grow as an individual will still be realized in every learner in this kind of modality.

Undeniably, modular learning also has benefits and advantages for the schoolchildren. It offers a different set-up as far from the usual but there are several reasons why it may be considered as an alternative modality.

This kind of learning provides the child the opportunity to work and reflect on the ideas regarding the lesson. This is also the way to discover new things at their own, using their own pace and comfort.

The schoolchildren may enjoy the different learning materials from varied subject areas for they contain the most essential lessons, competencies and skills. In addition, the activities, exercises, illustrations, charts and tables make the learning materials more understandable.

Moreover, there would an ample time for them to study plus the comfort of staying at home and the convenience of not travelling every day. There may also be times that they may share ideas with parents or guardians as the ones guiding them along the way.
The good thing in modular learning is that the kids may be engaged in researching and in looking for other related ideas and information about the lesson. They may look for other references or search websites in the Internet for further and additional learning.

The great thing on modular learning is that the bonding between the child and the parent is strengthened. When the learner and parent are the ones dealing with the lessons together, their relationship becomes better.

Modular system of learning is preferred by most parents in the country for it is beneficial, economical, convenient, enjoyable, and fun.
